PREFACE

Social and Cultural Problems in Wartime is one of ten parts of a series of selected and annotated bibliographies to be known collectively as "Bibliographies of a World at War". The aim is to provide a guide to current materials published since April 1941, relating to national defense and the war effort. It is planned to issue the various parts noted below as separates and later bound as a unit. Supplements will appear at quarterly intervals.

- I. Political Backgrounds of the War
- II. Agriculture in a War Economy
- III. Natural Resources and Raw Materials
- IV. Industry in Wartime.
- V. Labor in Wartime
- VI. Economics of War
- VII. Civilian Defense.
- VIII. Social and Cultural Problems in Wartime
- IX. Military Aspects of the War
- X. Postwar Planning and Reconstruction

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Social and cultural effects of the war have not yet been as fully treated by serious writers as the economic and military aspects. This is partly because military and economic problems have seemed more pressing and partly because the social consequences of war cannot be appraised so promptly. This is reflected in the volume of material in this section of the bibliography. The period covered is from March 1941 to April 1942. Some earlier foreign material, only recently received, is also included.

The material has been grouped in three broad categories. First comes the effect of the war on social conditions, such as population, crime, housing, public health, public welfare, and morale. Second is placed material on the effect of the war on social groups formed around some common interest or problem, such as aliens, minorities, refugees, youth, women, and consumers. In the third category may be found material on the effect of the war on certain social institutions such as religion, science, education, the family, civil liberties, and social legislation. Factual material and serious analytical material was all found to fall under one of these specific subject headings.

Perhaps the most useful periodical on the social effects of the war is the SURVEY GRAPHIC (New York). Other useful periodicals in special fields are the POPULATION INDEX (Princeton), which annotates current material in the field of population; the JOURNAL OF SOCIAL HYGIENE (New York); the AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PUBLIC HEALTH (New York); the publications of the American Public Welfare Association (Chicago), which issues pamphlets on social services and public welfare; the AMERICAN JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY (Chicago); the JOURNAL OF EDUCATIONAL SOCIOLOGY (New York); the AMERICAN SOCIOLOGICAL REVIEW (Monasha, Wis.); the publications of the American Civil Liberties Union (New York); INTERPRETER RELEASES (New York) which deals with immigration and alien questions; THE FAMILY (New York); SCHOOL AND SOCIETY (New York); the publications of the National Education Association (Washington) and the Progressive Education Association (New York); the AMERICAN LABOR LEGISLATION REVIEW (New York); SOCIAL SECURITY (New York); and the AMERICAN CHILD (New York).

Government periodicals of interest in this field include the MONTHLY LABOR REVIEW (Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor); PUBLIC HEALTH REPORTS (Public Health Service); THE CHILD (Children's Bureau, Department of Labor); WOMAN WORKER (Women's Bureau, Department of Labor); the SOCIAL SECURITY BULLETIN (Social Security Board). A special publication of interest is Education and National Defense of the U. S. Office of Education, published in two parts, one listing private sources of information, and the other listing Government sources. The Office of Education also publishes a bi-weekly newsmagazine entitled EDUCATION FOR VICTORY, which summarizes war events of interest to educators, and reports on the role of education in the war. The government agency covering the field of recreation and welfare is the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, but it has issued scarcely any publications other than news releases.

Bibliographies in the field are meager. There is Dorothy Tompkins' Social and Economic Problems Arising out of World War II (Chicago, 1941, 114 p.), which is devoted largely to economic aspects. The Bibliography Division of the Library of Congress has published Women's Part in World War II (1942) and Children and the War (1942). For a bibliography on civil liberties, see the Sesquicentennial of the Bill of Rights, prepared for the Office of Civilian Defense with the collaboration of the Library of Congress (1941). On housing see Defense Housing in the United States, a reading list prepared by the Library of the Federal Housing Administration. Regular periodical indexes are also useful, particularly the BULLETIN OF THE PUBLIC AFFAIRS INFORMATION SERVICE (New York) and the VERTICAL FILE SERVICE CATALOGUE (New York), an annotated list of pamphlets. In several instances the annotations of the VERTICAL FILE SERVICE CATALOG and the POPULATION INDEX have been utilized.

- 12 The Far East Year Book, 1941.
Tokyo, Far East Year Book, Inc., 1941. 1170 p.
The 1941 edition is revised and considerably enlarged as compared with previous issues. The Japan section, pp. 15-580, has a chapter devoted to population and emigration which in general has data similar to that in the Japan year book. Succeeding sections cover Manchukuo, China, Commonwealth of the Philippines, French Indo-China, Thailand, British Malaya, Netherlands East Indies, and British Borneo.

I. POPULATION TRENDS (cont.)

- 13 Fei lu pin hua chiao chih fa chan, by Li Chang-fu.
NAN YANG YEN CHIN (Shanghai), April 1940, v. 9, p. 47-64.
The development of Chinese emigration to the Philippines.-
History and present developments.
- 14 Foreign Labour in Germany, prepared by Royal Institute of International Affairs.
BULLETIN OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS (London), v. 18, p. 1263-1269.
Official German pronouncements, treaties, and the press of various countries form the basis for an estimate of 3.5 million foreign workers in German industry. The number of civilian workers is estimated by country of origin as of April 1, 1941. The treatment of foreign labor and the plans for its continued use after the war are described.
- 15 Germany Is not Threatened by Over-Population, by Józef Winiewicz.
FREE EUROPE (London), February 22, 1942, v. 5, p. 72.
Author refutes the claim of Germany to more living space in the East, giving data on the decline of population and on the migratory tendency to the West.
- 16 The Greatest Migration in History, by Herrymon Maurer.
TRAVEL (New York), September 1941, v. 77, p. 15-19, 36.
Description of the flight of millions of Chinese into the remote western hinterlands of their vast country. Author tells of the creation of a new and united nation in the midst of chaos and death.
- 17 Half a Century of Population Trends in India, by Arthur Geddes.
GEOGRAPHICAL JOURNAL (London), November-December 1941, v. 98, p. 228-252.
Net population changes by districts and regions are described and mapped for the fifty-year period, 1881-1931. A more refined measure of change was secured by determining the average deviation in each region from an exponential curve passing through 1881 and 1931. Thus a measure is given of the population instability of famine and epidemic areas versus the comparative stability of the chronic deficiency areas.
- 18 Hsien lo hua ch'iao ti ching chi huo tung, by Li Lin.
NAN YAN YEN CHIU (Shanghai), July 1940, v. 9, p. 48-69.
